

Vol IX, Issue 9½
April 1, 1982
The Fools Day
Salisbury State College
Salisbury, Maryland

Fryer
Pandrrippings

This special issue of the Fryer is produced whenever we damn well please, and whenever we are sober enough to do it, in accordance with rules and regulations set forth by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. But we at the Fryer, who have a blatant disregard for rules and regulations didn't follow a damn one of them. Face on you!!!

FEATURE

'Miss X' Rides Again

By Maggie Tons

Preparations are now underway for the Third Annual 'Miss X' Contest to be held April 23-25, during Student Recognition Week. Due to the continuous interest in the last two 'Miss X' contests, it was decided to hold the competition again this year.

This contest was conceived in October, 1979, by 'Donna Am-track.' She was reputed to have become 'very good' friends with 50-60 males of SSC. Her feats acclaimed national recognition in the Washington Post and the Seoul Times. During this history-making period, she was unanimously honored with the title of 'Miss X.' A try was made in the spring of 1981 to break 'Miss X's' record. Although a gallant effort was made, the record still stands unbroken. 'Miss X', as she was dubbed, set the wheels in motion for the continued demand for this type of campus wide activity.

With so much interest in 'Miss X' and 'Miss X', the Advancement for Sexual Sciences (ASS), a campus organization, has decided to sponsor this year's competition.

The ASS has set forth Student Recognition Weekend for the contest. Dr. Two Can Choo, spokesman for ASS told the Fryer that "The potential this contest holds for the student body is never-ending. The students of SSC should be proud of the recognition that this contest will bring to the college. The parents of the participants should also be proud...after all, it is a reflection on them too." Dr. Choo continued, "We at ASS want to commemorate these students for a job well done."

The competition will begin on April 23, and end with the awards ceremony on April 25. Activities for the 23rd include:

10 a.m.-Sign-up for the men in the College Center
11 a.m.-Sign up for the women in the College Center

12 noon-3 p.m.-Check-up for all participants in the Health Center
6 p.m.-The competition will begin in the Quad

This contest will be very simple. The first girls who call it quits will be eliminated. The last remaining female will be declared the winner. A scorekeeper will be near each contestant to keep a running tally. "We want to keep this event strictly legitimate," replied Dr. Choo. "We want no discrepancies."

All contestants are asked to meet in the Quad at 5:15 p.m. for their lane assignments. Promptly at 6 p.m., the starting gun will be fired by former President of SSC, Dr. Norman C. Crawford. Crawford will also be the guest speaker at the awards ceremony. "The choice of Crawford for emcee of this gala event was decided upon by a committee of ASS members, faculty, and 100 seniors. The seniors were polled while at the Phoenix on a Thursday night. "Although they may have been a little inebriated, I feel that they do have a voice in this matter," expostorated Dr. Choo.

Beer and pretzels will be available to sustain the participants throughout the weekend. Viewing stands will be erected (no pun intended) for spectators and parents. Parents will have reserved seating. In the event of a tie, there will be a sudden death playoff consisting of one 37 minute period in which the last two females will compete for the crown of 'Miss X'.

The awards ceremony will begin promptly at 7:22 p.m. on Sunday, April 25. A speech will be given by Dr. Crawford on "The Diversification of the College Student." This will be followed by the crowning of the new 'Miss X' by Dr. Two Can Choo. "Miss X's" parents will also be honored. "This is a day that will live on in the history of Salisbury State College," gleefully chortled Dr. Choo.

The Rocky Review

Last weekend, the Salisbury State College Theater Department presented "The Rocky Horror Picture Show." A musical production, "Rocky Horror" concerns two horn-again virgins (played by Sue Strive and Jeff Percy) who become stranded at the castle of the mad Dr. Ham Burger, a sex-starved transvestite played by Kris Harris. During the course of the play, both virgins are sexually assaulted, taken advantage of, and finally converted to a life of lewd and perverse sexual acts.

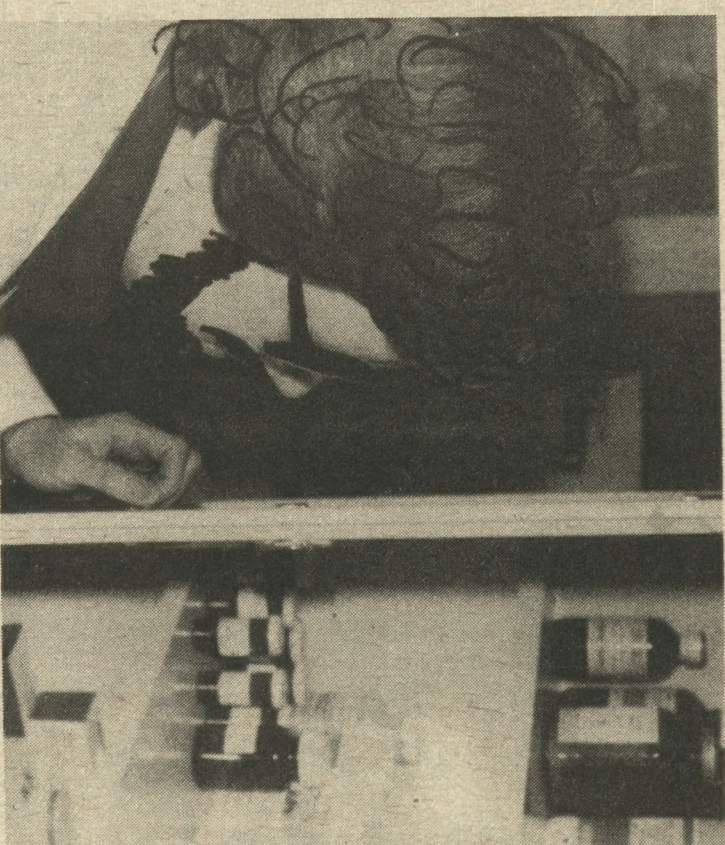

The play was well received, drawing record attendance of 100% from the students and 75% from the faculty and administration (the other 25% were attending a weekend party thrown by Dr. Dolly Stewart).

An excellent performance was given by Joanne Upchuck, who played the transvestite's Jewish mother. She was especially good in her rather stirring scene where she admits to dressing her son in pink pajamas when he was a baby.

Probably the most exciting scene was the orgy scene involving the entire cast. Some considered this rather objectionable, as it contained explicit sexual acts. However, the students seemed to enjoy it, and there was even some audience participation.

Leaving the auditorium, several viewers were heard to say, "It's about time we got some quality entertainment around here."

Director of Public Relations Wayne Chicken was heard to remark, however, "I still don't understand the part about the pink pajamas."

"It's amazing how many rubbers one can store in a metal cabinet!"

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor,

It is with deep, profound, inarticulate regret that I inform the student body of the death of my sweet, honey dearest, Hank Hausdorff. Some of your readers may remember Hank from previous letters he has written to this illustrious publication. Poor Hank's death came at the hooves of a herd of stampeding piglets. He had been feeding the piglets their daily ration of scraps, procured from the Ruth Powell Inn, when one of the piglets cried out, "Enough of this slop, just because the students eat this rot, doesn't mean we have to!"

With that, the piglets rushed towards poor Hank. Caught unaware, 133 piglet hooves trampled Hank into the mire of the pigsty. But Hank hung on. He was rescued from the murderous piglets by his sweet Aunt Emily, aged 87 (she used to be a wrestler). Hank was taken to Seafood Sam's where three funnels of beer were given to him. Hank was revived soon after. Hank seemed to be doing well, but when he heard that piglets all over the Fruitland area were revolting and murdering their feeders, Hank was overcome with grief. "It's all my fault," he wailed. "If I hadn't fed my piglets those leftovers from the Ruth Powell Inn, those farmers would be alive today." With that last utterance, Hank emitted a pitiful wail and died.

Hank was a devoted reader of the Fryer, and I'm absolutely, positively sure that he had many fans who looked forward to his letters on life, love and the good times he had. Hank will be sorely missed around SSC, but I think I will miss the "avacado of my eye" more than anything.

Morbidly yours,
Maggie Tons

The Fryer
Fools Day
April 1, 1982

NEWS

Bellydancer Takes Action

At a press conference held yesterday, Salisbury State College President Thomas E. Bellydancer announced that next semester SSC would undergo its first tuition decrease since the founding of the institution 57 years ago. The current $870 in-state, $1,820 out-of-state tuitions will now be cut to $300 in-state and $500 out-of-state per year.

Contrary to popular belief, increased federal aid has been dropped to a meager $2 per student. Bellydancer went on to explain the sudden availability of funds.

"When we heard about Reagan's latest cuts, we realized that we could not count on any financial assistance from the government for the fiscal year to come. That was when we decided to take the proverbial 'bull by the horns,' as it were, and make some in-house decisions.

Since there was no cash carry-over from previous years, funds already allocated had to be retracted in order to finance the reduction. After carefully surveying all of our programs here, we formulated a plan to procure the necessary cash.

What I did was simply this: On a typical work day I took a tour of the entire campus. Every time I saw a state employee lounging, around or goofing off, I fired their asses! The money saved in salaries came out to about $350,000."

When asked how SSC could function with only 14 custodians and two maintenance men, Bellydancer replied, "We've already solved that problem. You see, the way we figure it, one student can do about as much work as six state employees. With this in mind, we are prepared to offer free room and board in exchange for custodial and maintenance services, and a social work secretary to a limited number of students. This creates more student jobs, increases productivity, lowers tuition, and gets those lazy-asses the hell out of here!"

Brately's Mystery Meat

Monte Brately, director of food services, announced today that the cafeteria would be purchasing real meat for next semester.

When asked why he decided to make the switch, he replied, "For years we have been serving horse, deer, and buffalo meat. (Otherwise known as mystery meat) We got such a great response that we were unable to serve it for seconds. Because of the recent price increases in the mystery meat market, (all schools are demanding it,) we decided it would be best to go back to serving the real stuff."

It is not yet clear how the students will react to the change. The Fryer did some investigative reporting and discovered that 97% of the students were against the change. John Hoshbag, president of the Student Government Association, summed it up best by saying, "The problem we have here lies in the digestive systems of every student on the lovely meal plan. At the last General Board meeting, students were voicing their concern over the fact that it took months, even years to build up a tolerance to the food served there. To change now would disrupt every student's digestive system and create a huge, odor-like cloud over the entire SSC campus."

When Food Services was told of the results of the SGA Meeting, they told the Fryer that more surveys would be distributed to see what kind of foods appealed to the students, and to see if the need to continue with mystery meat is really justified.

The Health Center, unprepared to deal with gastro-intestinal disturbances, voiced their anger at the decision to return to real meat. As a revolt, they have decided to curtail their hours of operation to a bare minimum only to help those in dire need of medical attention.

CNI Is Recruiting

Do you enjoy picking your nose in public? Is your hair oily enough to drive J. R. Ewing out of business? Do you have the personality of a slug? If you answered yes to any of the above questions, you may be eligible for a membership to SSC's newest student organization, the Coalition of Nerdy Individuals. The CNI is a service organization for campus nerds. "It has to be," quoted CNI President Wilfred Crump, "It couldn't be a social frat. Nerds have no social life."

However, the group is planning to sponsor several activities this semester, including study halls, multiplication bees, and trivia rap sessions.

To be eligible for membership, you must fulfill at least two of the following requirements:

1. oily hair, must be stringy
 2. lots of pimples, especially on face and shoulders
 3. high grade point average (nerds are very studious)
 4. lack of social graces
 5. winy, high-pitched voice
 6. very thick glasses (extra for wire frames)
 7. nondescript body
 8. plain, baggy clothes (should look like their mother still dresses them)
 9. chronic distaste for beer
 10. must be celibate (do they have a choice?)
- Nominations for CNI must be submitted in crayon to Wilfred Crump, care of Blackwell Library, any time, day or night.

The first five people to come into the Crook Rack will receive a gift certificate for a free pint of blood at Peninsula General Hospital

Is This You?

Never Leave Home Without It

The Fryer
Fools Day
April 1, 1982

